Project Research Program Implementation Guidelines

These materials set out the implementation guidelines adopted by the Joint Usage / Research Center Programs at the Institute of Economic Research (IER), Hitotsubashi University for the project research programs conducted in fiscal 2026. As a rule, this project research entails travel to the IER and performing research activities on site. This document covers the following topics:

- I. Grant implementation and management
- II. Holding research symposia
- III. Research facilities and equipment available for use
- IV. Publication of research results
- V. Submission of research reports
- VI. Information disclosure
- VII. Contact details

We trust this information will prove useful in your research activities. Please read carefully these guidelines before your research activities start.

I. Grant implementation and management

- The IER will implement and manage the grant. The grant includes expenses necessary for carrying out research (goods, travel, personnel expenditure and remuneration, and others). The funds are disbursed through the IER's budget in accordance with the University's accounting standards. Please note it is strongly required that the goods which you order should be the actually needed materials to implement the project.
- Only if the faculty of the IER participates as a Co-Investigator, you can purchase "Cashable goods" (such as personal computers) and goods with an acquisition price of 100 thousand yen or more. In addition, the installation site of the purchased items must be placed in the IER building. The researchers who are not affiliated with Hitotsubashi University are not allowed to use the purchased items at their institutions. Please note that Hitotsubashi University are authorized to decide whether or not to purchase items.
"Cashable goods" list
 - (1) Personal computer, liquid crystal display and monitor;
 - (2) Tablet computer (including e-paper and e-book readers); (3) Digital camera;
 - (4) Video camera; (5) Television; (6) Video/Sound recording device;
 - (7) Electronic dictionary; (8) Cash vouchers
- When the Principal Investigator or Co-Investigators use the grant, they are required to prepare and submit the application forms of travel, conference expenses, remuneration and purchasing goods together with the necessary documents to the Joint Usage / Research Center Programs Section, IER Administration Office through an internal contact person (hereinafter referred as “the Administration Office.”) Also, the Principal Investigator or Co-Investigators are required to lead the initiative in preparing arrangements related to the seminars when they organize them. It is not allowed the out-of-pocket expenses in normal cases since the IER implements and manages the grant, as mentioned above. The application forms will be provided later. The Administration Office will answer all queries, such as those regarding uncertainties about the implementation of grants.

- We will inform you of the IER’s budget implementation schedule at a later date. For accounting purposes, please inform the Administration Office of the spending plan for the entire amount in accordance with the details given in Section V of the application form, “Requested grant amount” before the grant funds are used. Although it is acceptable that you spend the money in January and afterward, the spending plan must be reported by mid-January. The details will be announced later.

II. Holding research symposia

- Grant funds may be used to hold research meetings, seminars, and conferences with research group members and invited researchers from Japan or overseas. There is no limit to the number of meetings that may be held.
- One important objective of joint research projects is to disseminate research results obtained using the project budget to the wider research community and the general public. Please hold at least one public research meeting or conference during the research period. While it is desirable that you use facilities at the IER or within Hitotsubashi University, you are not required to do so, depending on the objective and nature of the research meetings. It is also possible to hold a research meeting online if necessary. When you hold such an event, please inform the Administration Office directly or through the faculty member of the IER who is a Co-Investigator or an internal contact person on your research group. The IER posts information on public research meetings and conferences on its website.
- When you hold a meeting related to project research, please report to the Administration Office on each occasion using Form 2. Please note that this format is subject to change, but we will notify you in advance.

III. Research facilities and equipment available for use

1. Seminar and meeting rooms

- You may use seminar and meeting rooms within the IER for joint study and workshops. These can be broadly classified into three categories: 1) joint research laboratories (one room); 2) seminar rooms (four rooms); and 3) conference room (one room). Joint research laboratories are special rooms that may be used by research groups on a priority basis for carrying out project-related research. As a rule, the laboratory may be used for a maximum of seven consecutive days, with all-day use permitted. Seminar rooms are used by the IER and research staff for daily meetings and lectures; they may be used for short meetings and research workshops for up to 10 participants. The conference room is the largest meeting facility at the IER, and may be used for symposia of around 40 participants. For detailed specifications about the seminar rooms and conference room, please refer to the separately attached materials.

- Please reserve rooms in advance, either through one of the IER's faculty (if they are participating as a Co-Investigator or an internal contact person to the research group) or through the Administration Office. It is also possible to use the IER's office and seminar rooms at night and on weekends. The IER will lend a limited number of keycards for accessing the premises to interested individuals during their time at the IER.
- When you use the facilities in the IER, we ask to sign on the Form 1, and submit it to the Administration Office on each occasion. When you hold a meeting related to project research, please use Form 2 on each occasion.

2. Books and other research materials

- You can use the IER library and the library of Research Centre for Information and Statistics of Social Science attached to the Institute if you need.
- A library card is required if you borrow books at the IER library. Please inquire at the IER library counter.
- A prior appointment is required for using the library of Research Centre for Information and Statistics of Social Science.
- We offer a service to order copies of books, journal articles. Please consult at the IER library counter.
- The IER will lend research group members from outside the IER a limited number of copy cards for copying papers during their time at the IER. Interested individuals should inquire with the Administration Office, either before they come to the IER or when they arrive.
- The cost of ordering or copying papers is deducted from grant funds.

3. Databases

- The databases produced by the IER and by large-scale projects may be used. Additionally, government statistics micro data provided by the Research Centre for Information and Statistics of Social Science attached to the IER may be used with the approval of the National Statistics Center. Please refer to the IER's website and that of the Research Centre for Information and Statistics of Social Science for the type of information available and further details.
- It is also possible to use other databases that are currently being produced by the IER's researchers and large-scale projects with the agreement of the party responsible for the particular database. For details, please contact a faculty member who is also a Co-Investigator or an internal contact person in the research group or the Administration Office.

*Please refer to the following webpage for available databases.

<https://www.ier.hit-u.ac.jp/English/databases/index.html>

4. Network

- Some technical procedures need to be completed to connect your computer to the IER's LAN and file server, including registering the physical address on the server and creating a network usage account. The IER's Large-Scale Data Archiving and Processing Section (IT Section) can assist you with this. Please consult with the Administration Office upon arriving at the IER.
- During your time at the IER, we can lend out a limited number of computers running Windows in Japanese, English, and other languages. Interested individuals should contact the Administration Office in advance.

5. On-site facility (Joint-Research Laboratory 1)

We offer an on-site facility, which is an isolated office, to assure security. When you use this facility, please apply to the Microdata Analysis Section with the application form for the on-site facility, or you can enter a tentative usage schedule on the research project application form. An active use of this facility is welcome since you can analyze data while discussing in a safe environment. For details about the computation environment, please inquire at the Microdata Analysis Section.

IV. Publication of research results

- One important objective of joint research projects is to widely disseminate research results; we ask for your cooperation not only during the project, but after its completion as well.
- When publishing the results of project research in journal articles, books, or through other means, please be sure to acknowledge in the relevant publication the receipt of assistance from the Joint Usage / Research Center Programs at the Institute of Economic Research, Hitotsubashi University. (Example sentence: "This research was supported by the Joint Usage / Research Center, Institute of Economic Research, Hitotsubashi University. (Grant ID: IERPK26)")
- When the results of your project research are published, please inform the Administration Office directly or through a faculty member who is a Co-Investigator or an internal contact person of your research group. The IER is developing an archive of the Joint Usage and Research Center's project results. To this end, we ask that you kindly donate one copy of your publication to the IER library. Once the project period is over, we may have ongoing queries regarding the published results for project Principal Investigators and other group members. We ask for your understanding and cooperation in this matter.
- Research group members may release the results of project research as an Institute of Economic Research discussion paper both during the project research and after its completion. Prior to release, a faculty member in charge of discussion papers will review the contents. If you wish to publish any research results, please save the relevant information as a PDF file and email it to the Administration Office.

V. Submission of research reports

- Principal Investigators should submit the results of the research by the end of April 2027. Please fill in the necessary sections of Form 3, and submit an electronic version of research report (PDF file) to the Administration Office (email address: ier-kyodo-riyou@ad.hit-u.ac.jp).

VI. Information disclosure

- For the purposes of information dissemination, project research applications, and research reports may be published on the IER's Joint Usage / Research Center's website in whole or in part.
- Applications for project research, research reports, research results, record of facilities usage at the IER, research meeting report, and other documentation related to the implementation of project research may be used when appropriate in business reports or other such publications produced by the IER.
